Write a program to calculate the absolute difference between two integers.

Example:

Input: 3 4

Output:1

Which of the following statement is correct with respect to the use of friend keyword inside a class?

Which of the following can access private data members or member functions of a class?